GLOBALIZED GOVERNANCE, DEMOCRATIC DEFICIT, AND TRANSNATIONALIZATION OF
THE PUBLIC SPHERE

TUESDAY APRIL 7

1:00-2:30 PM

POLITICAL SCIENCE RESEARCH COLLECTION

The Indiana Democracy Consortium is happy to host Professor Slavko Splichal, Professor of Communication in the Media Studies Department of the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana and an associate member of the Slovenian Academy of Sciences and Arts. He is director of the European Institute for Communication and Culture and as editor of the institute's journal, Javnost—The Public. His work focuses on the role of media in civil society and the public sphere as it relates to democracy and democratization in post-communist Eastern and Central Europe. As one of the most important public intellectuals working in contemporary Eastern Europe, Professor Splichal is a recognized expert on democracy-building and the role of the media in forming viable publics in transitioning states. Please join the IDC on April 7 at 1:00 in the Political Science Research Collection as Professor Splichal presents his paper "Globalized Governance, Democratic Deficit, and the Transnationalization of the Public Sphere."
