

The Indiana Democracy Consortium

SAAD EDDIN IBRAHIM VISITING FELLOW OF THE INDIANA UNIVERSITY INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED STUDY

AS THE DUST SETTLES IN GAZA
MONDAY APRIL 13
4:00-5:30 PM

POLITICAL SCIENCE RESEARCH COLLECTION

The Indiana Democracy Consortium is happy to host noted Egyptian sociologist, activist, and democracy reformer Saad Eddin Ibrahim. Dr. Ibrahim, a Visiting Fellow of the Indiana University Institute of Advanced Study, is a professor of sociology at the American University in Cairo and the founder of the Ibn Khaldun Center and the Arab Organization for Human Rights. Under Dr. Ibrahim's guidance, these organizations have been on the forefront of advocating on behalf on liberalization, minority rights, gender equality, and human development in Egypt and the Arab world more broadly.

Please join the IDC on Monday April 13 at 4:00 in the Political Science Research Collection as we welcome Dr. Ibrahim back to Bloomington. He'll give a public lecture on the current political and humanitarian conditions in Gaza and discuss the issue of democratic reform in the broader Middle East. This Lecture is sponsored by the IDC, Political Science, Sociology, Near East Languages and Cultures, Middle Eastern Studies, SPEA, the Law School, and the Institute for Advanced Study.
